HANDWRITING IS VERY IMPORTANT IN OUR DAILY LIVES BECAUSE....

Jotting down a shopping list, writing a birthday card, taking down a phone message, completing a form at the bankhandwriting is part of our daily lives. It is on show to others and may be used to make judgments about us.

Writing has a very long history. It began as simple pictographs drawn on a rock, which were then combined to represent ideas and developed into more abstract symbols. Just like our writing today, early symbols were used to store information and communicate it to others.

In recent years, modern technology has dramatically changed the way we communicate through writing. However, despite the increased use of computers for writing, the skill of handwriting remains important in education, employment and in everyday life.

Time devoted to the teaching and learning of letter formation in the early years will pay off. Legible writing that can be produced comfortably, at speed and with little conscious effort allows a child to attend to the higher-level aspects of writing composition and content. This is important when assessments are based on written work, particularly in time-limited written examinations, which remain as a major form of assessment for many formal qualifications. Without fast and legible handwriting, students may miss out on learning opportunities and under-achieve academically.

Beyond formal education, most employment situations will involve at least some handwriting and any require the communication of critical information (e.g. medical notes, prescriptions).

Thus, handwriting with pen and paper still has an important role from early childhood through our adult lives, But more and more, people are shifting from paper to electronic modes of communication. Interestingly though, many personal computers now have handwriting recognition capability so that handwriting as means of interacting with computers is becoming more pervasive. It seems, therefore, that even in this modern age, handwriting remains an important skill for communication.

Handwriting analysis, or graphology, is the science involved in producing a personality profile of the writer by examining the characteristics, traits and strokes of an individual's handwriting. I know it seems impossible, but a graphologist like me can gather an astonishing amount of information about the writer just from analysing their handwriting. Besides creating a complete personality profile, many other things are revealed in your handwriting, such as health issues, morality, past experiences, hidden talents, mental problems.

How it works?

Your brain guides your hand. Everything put on paper is a result of a two-way circuit between your brain and the motor reflex muscles of your hand. Thus, your handwriting becomes a Polygraph or Oscilloscope read-out of your "complete self." To you, it's just handwriting, but to a handwriting analyst, it paints a picture of the person "behind the pen."

Traits involved in this handwriting sample are:

- Area 4 & Heavy pressure
- Rounded investigative thinking
- Average size
- Lower zone dominating
- Change, Desire for
- Confusion of interests
- Directness
- Evasiveness
- Idiosyncrasy
- Intuitiveness
- Line value
- Literary leanings
- Narrow mindedness
- Pride
- Regression
- Secretiveness
- Sarcasm
- Perfectly straight left margin

REPORT

I have taken graphological analysis of XYZ to know more about her.

XYZ is a judgemental person and often wins the race by being right. She shows her feelings easily but preserve objectivity. She remembers emotional events and feelings longer. She is a well-adjustable person and believes in "Give and take respect" policy. At times, she is very calm and even tempered. She is more concerned about her family and her loved ones. She is a very self-disciplined person with extremely rigid and inflexible in her beliefs and attitude.

She does not like to get stuck in a rut but she can adapt easily to the changing environment. She has a great variety of interests, ideas and thoughts but can have difficulty meeting deadlines. She saves time by coming quickly to the point in thinking, speaking, writing or acting but can injure relationships and the feeling of others by getting straight to the point. She has the ability to change subjects easily and likes to be different and unusual. She anticipates well and prepares for events and has good sense for the feelings and motivates others.

She can achieve good balance and symmetry when arranging things but she becomes agitated when things are not properly balanced. She has an aptitude for writing and appreciates good writing. She is very selective in adopting new ideas but hesitates to listen to others opinions.

She has a sense of self-respect, personal dignity and satisfaction in her accomplishments. She focuses on the past when times have been happier because happy memories can have a sustaining power but living in the past may not be realistic.

She can be trusted to keep a matter confidential and would not likely tell others more than they need to know. She can keep people from getting too close and creates unnecessary animosity and tension. Without lying, she can escape embarrassing or negative moments and can avoid taking a strong position on an issue.
